

Yuri Zatarain's works have been exhibited in galleries all over the world. Born in Guadalajara, Mexico of Russian heritage, he trained as a painter and then became involved with ceramics while designing a new collection of sculptural pieces.

A self-described "hunter of new forms and ideas," Zatarain's work is informed by nature and the cultures of traditional societies. He combines natural materials with inspired design, combining a global sensibility with a contemporary aesthetic. Zatarain sums up his work by describing it as "ethnic chic."
